Unified User Credentials

Unified User Credentials to Launch on December 4th, 2017

On Monday, December 4th, Geopath will be implementing a new unified password authentication platform which will allow for a simplified user experience and a higher level of security across all our systems.

What this means?

Once the new authentication system goes live, users will be able to log into all our tools – ADS, OOHPlan, S/HE-Beta, and the geekOUT library – using the same email address and password.

What do you need to do?

All active users will receive an email the evening of December 3rd with a link to set a new universal password. Information on password requirements will be available on the verification page as you set your password.

After setting your password, you will be able to start using your new credentials immediately to access all our tools.

If you have any questions about the upcoming changes, please feel free to reach out to us at geekOUT@geopath.org.

Thank you,
